HOW TO PLAY

1

You will need pens/pencils or bingo markers (if playing with paper cards).

2

Every person or team selects a bingo card. There are 6 different randomized cards. If more than 6 people are playing, form teams.

3

Appoint a referee. This person will be responsible for determining what counts as a point and if a bingo is valid. This should (probably) be the soberest or most ethical person in your group. The referee may also play the game, as long as you trust them not to cheat.

4

Go to a Texas winery (or three). Drink some wine and look for the items on your bingo card. Mark them off when you find them.

5

Objects mentioned in the game can be physical or images/pictures. For example, if your card says "Horse," either an actual horse in a pasture or a painting of a horse is valid to score the point. (Pics on your phone do not count.) Any disputes are settled by the referee.

6

Anything in quotes must be overheard or read in the winery. For example, if the menu calls a wine "jammy," or the bartender describes it as "jammy," either scenario would score a point. Simply drinking a jammy wine does not count. Again, the referee has the final say.

7

A player or team scores a "Bingo" and wins the round when they complete a diagonal, vertical, or horizontal line. (The center square is free.) Although it's possible to play a "Blackout" game of Texas Winery Bingo, if you get a blackout then maybe you've been at the winery too long.

Have fun, drink responsibly, and enjoy Texas wines!
